

Hart's ladder seems to show the process getting off the ground, even when we are tokenistic or manipulative in our way of enabling participation. Although the first three rungs of the ladder are counted as non-participation, it doesn't mean you have to go through those negative processes before you reach the start of real participation.

